Entries

The 42nd edition of the Kanter was held in a part of Surrey where an LDWA challenge event had never taken place. The new venue at Oxted appeared to be well received, a state of the art modern building with extensive views of the North Downs. There were 58 entries in all, in addition to the above Jackie Barker also entered and started but had to abandon the event due to an emergency. As last year the area has largely survived the latest round of pub closures, apart from one at Bletchingley crossroads. The most historic pub was the Red Lion, the second pub at at Bletchingley, with parts dating from 1309. The longer gaps between controls again gave walkers and runners a chance to use their orienteering skills in finding an optimum route. All except two of the clues were inns this time, nearly all picked up that there had been a late change to the answer at the White Hart but not to the question! The clue outside Godstone on former A22 was meant to be the 'Bow Bells' milestone but this had vanished and the nearby toll house was used instead. A most extraordinary feature of the area is the skull and crossbones on a gravestone which mark the final resting place of a pirate and smuggler who died of wounds received in an ambush carried out by customs officers in 1687; this was visible at the parish church in Godstone on the return route. Most walkers and runners managed the route in good time. I am grateful to those who helped in serving in the kitchen at peak times. If you see any errors in the results, can you please let me know and I'll get the web page updated.
