"Torrential rain, floods, snow, freezing winds, but not on the day of the Winter Tanners when it was blue sky all the way, albeit a little chilly at 7am."

I typed the above on Tuesday 7th January to cheer myself up. It was white outside and still snowing. Temperatures were well below zero. I needed 9 checkpoint marshals and only had 4. I was trying to get the route descriptions sent out, but entrants were using all methods to get in applications at the 11th hour. And I had barely begun to consider the algebra needed to work out how many pints of milk were needed to guarantee a satisfied walker.

OK I did not quite get the supplies right, but if it's any consolation to those who missed their biscuit at Tanner Hatch, I've got so much milk that I'm trying to work out how to make cheese. But the weather was as glorious as in my prediction, except that "a little chilly at 7am" was the acme of British understatement. With minus ten reported at nearby Redhill I have learnt that it is possible to have hypothermia and hyperactivity at the same time as the stream, sometimes flood, of on the day entries kept us busy.

For admiring the views it was the perfect day, for walking, running and jogging it was as near ideal as you can get in January with the dreaded mud rock hard. However, conditions under foot were, in places, better suited to the talents of Torvill and Dean. I hope all those who practised horizontal locomotion, or met with other inanimate objects too suddenly have recovered from their cuts and bruises. For the marshals it was a test of how many layers of clothing you could put on and still move. I have just about got back to a normal temperature and I hope they have.

My thanks to all the marshals who gave up a lot of time to help, to those who volunteered early on and to those who came in at short notice to make it all work. Especial thanks to John Westcott for all his advice and for preparing a route which received unanimous praise

Entries 224 , Starters 206 (of which 90 were 21 mile), finishers 203

Results and Certificates are enclosed. In a few instances, marked with a *, I was unsure of the times so if I have got it wrong let me know and I will let you have a replacement certificate. Likewise if you find any other errors. On the day frozen fingers and iced up pens meant that some forms were apparently written in a Klingon sub dialect. Also my brain is getting numb from data inputting so errors and omissions must be expected if not excepted.

On the results I have only noted start time, finish time and event time. If anyone wants to know their time at each check point they just need to ask me.

Lost Property - One small black drawstring bag purpose unclear.

National Trust.- Thank you, on behalf of the National Trust, to those of you who donated just over one hundred pounds. We will be asking them to use the money to help protect what is, despite it's proximity to London, one of the most attractive parts of the country.

Thanks to every one who took part. I hope you enjoyed the day and will come back next year to try another route through the Surrey countryside.
